

PERMACULTURE

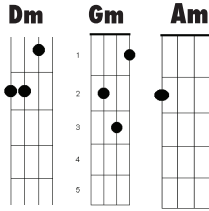

a Rhymers Manual

CHANGE

PRINCIPLE 12: CREATIVELY USE AND RESPOND TO CHANGE

Ukulele
Chords:

Lyrics & music by Charlie Jones. 2012.

One thing's for certain and that's that nothing's for certain You never know what's around the bend In whatever you're dealing just accept what you're feeling There's no point in believing it will never end

Cos it's changing,
constantly changing
In every situation the only thing that remains the same is change.

Like a change in the season change is there for a reason.
Can't stop ourselves from moving around the sun

There's no point in complaining if it's stormy and raining Just go and get an umbrella and play in the rain with someone

Cos it's changing
every moment changing Sometimes there's nothing you can do and no matter who you are you've just got to be cool with change

Change is there make the most of it Might as well use it for your benefit If your food's bad, better compost it When there's no planes, build a pirate ship and sail the seas!
You can do as you please but only if you know you've got to improvise your way through change

Even if you keep very still be guaranteed that nothing else will Don't sit around wondering what to do If you don't make change, it'll happen to you

We've got small change & big change and loose change slow change and fast change and a wind change We've got sea change and tree change and climate change
you change and me change and a key change...

*Change is all the rage, turn the page away from this strange age of the deranged.
Time to engage with rearranging our brains
from insane to sane.
Step out of your cage worrying about your wage or the Asian stock exchange.
Just drain your main vein of the pain, take to the stage and become an agent of change.*